Abstract

A device for processing a material web. The device includes a machine base member and a sonotrode supported in a housing. The housing is joined to the machine base member by at least one flexible element.